Green Look Covers Campus

By MARIE GRAHAM
Star Staff Writer

More than 200 flowering trees, shade trees, ornamental shrubs and bedding plants moved into their new home at Valley College this week.

They came from the home of students and faculty members as well as from nurseries, as the program for campus beautification gained momentum.

The program was started last week by the Patrician Club, a service organization.

As part of the Plant-a-Tree Week program, a presentation ceremony was held Tuesday with nine trees formally being given to the college by eight past presidents and Mrs. Charlotte Novak, Patrician president.

The trees were accepted by President Walter T. Coultas and were planted to shade the seats in the Quad.

Mrs. Alice Elconin and Mrs. Lela Coomer represented the past presidents.

Wilford E. Jenks, philosophy instructor, is faculty advisor to the Patrician Club.

"The reaction has been tremendous. I'm thrilled," said Mrs. Nena Royer, dean of student activities.

"The place has always been so bare. Everything helps," said Miss Dorothy M. Clark, secretary to President Coultas.

"I think the idea is wonderful. It should have been done long ago," said Mrs. Margaret Sloan, receptionist in the counselors' office.

Mrs. Anna Martin, math instructor, sought a Patrician officer to tell her, "I want to plant a tree."

Warren Hill, business administration major, said he remembered a similar program at the Thomas Patton Trade School in Elizabethtown, Pa. The project was so successful and the administration so proud of the resut, a two-ton native boulder was brought in and a brass plaque attached commemorating the event.

Hill complimented the Patrician Club on their initiative in attempting to unify the old campus with the new area by planting trees.

"I have a feeling that this campus is going to be here many years. Perhaps nothing was done before because it was considered temporary," Mrs. Ruth Finkel, education major, said. Mrs. Finkel's contribution, a tree-sized camellia, has been planted in the flower bed behind the chem lab.

A permanent committee of faculty members was formed to continue the project from one semester to the next. Chairman of the committee, George Hale, botany instructor, brought 30 specimen plants and trees.

Volunteers to serve on the Campus Beautification committee include Flavio Cabral, art instructor, who is drawing plans for the project, and Conley Gibson, bursar, who will handle the financial part of the program.

Others serving on the faculty committee include James L. Campbell, biology instructor; Gerald Meaker, history instructor; John Tatum, French instructor; and James L. Vial, biology instructor.

The program has been presented to the Inter-Organization Council to permit other clubs to participate in the project that affects every student.

There are so many individual donors of flowers and shrubs that space does not permit mentioning each donor. They include Dean Nena Royer, who brought flowering bulbs from her yard; students who brought rose bushes, camellias, hibiscus, several varieties of lilies, ferns and dozens of bedding plants and bulbs; and Connie Ramiriz, school gardener, who brought camellias and azaleas.

"I don't have an opportunity to work with flowers at my own home, so I consider this my own special flower bed," Ramiriz said.

In addition to the trees to shade the Quad, Mrs. Novak also gave a flowering peach tree to provide color as well as shade. Frank Hovey, former bursar, gave a tree. Phyllis Roberts, business administration major, gave an elm and an English walnut. Jiles Fitzgerald, history major, is giving a magnolia tree.

Plant-a-Tree Week, which will culminate Saturday, with Arbor Day, marks the 110 birthday anniversary of Luther Burbank, California's noted horticulturist.

Nystrom To Describe Art of South America

Traveling via 1957 Cadillac from Los Angeles to Colombia was the way Richard Nystrom, art instructor, began his trip to South America the year before last. Nystrom, who will speak on South American art and architecture for the Tuesday Lunch Series at noon Tuesday, traveled the southern continent during six months of a sabbatical leave.

During this time he visited Ecuador, Veneuzela, Brazil, Peru, Chile, Paraguay and Uraguay. Each country has its own interest, he said.

The art instructor's trip was punctuated with one incident after another, but there was never any real cause for worry, according to Nystrom.

Gives Boots Away

The natives or Indians, often feared for being wild, were actually very friendly and on one occasion when his car broke down in Colombia, one Indian insisted on helping him, he said. Money meant nothing to the Indian, so in payment the art instructor gave him a pair of army boots he had in the car.

The only dangerous situation Nystrom was exposed to was in Caracas, Venezuela, when the people and then the government army revolted.

Trouble Election Day

"I could tell there would be trouble election day when no one showed up at the polls. The people felt the election was no good," he said.

He left for Cartajena, Colombia, the same day that President Jimenez made his flight into exile.

Nystrom was particularly attracted to South America for its artistic values. He traveled and studied the Inca roads along the coastal plains of Colombia, Ecuador and Peru, built 700 to 800 A.D.

Studies Ruins

He studied the old architecture and Inca ruins, the people and their building methods and materials of past and present.

Concrete, says Nystrom, is used in great quantities in these countries, mainly because the material and the labor needed are both cheap. However, engineering in some cases is poor.

But in Rio de Janiero, Brazil, which Nystrom feels is the most beautiful city on the continent, the architecture is far advanced.

In other cities such as Lima, Peru, he was able to obtain an entire suite of rooms for $8 a day.

Nystrom covered a total of 23,000 miles by car and 40,000 miles by plane and ship.

Following his tour of South America, Nystrom returned to Los Angeles and then went to Europe for nine months.

Scribes Attend Meet At Redlands Campus

Journeying to Redlands tomorrow morning for an annual state-wide convention will be 10 members of the Valley College journalism department and its two advisers. They will spend Friday and Saturday at the Arrowhead Springs Hotel and Redland University. Dr. Esther Davis and Kenneth DeVol, journalism instructors, and representative students from all Valley's publications will attend.

Representatives from the Star, News Bureau, Crown, and photography department include Liz Allen, Lynda Elyea, Larry Fennell, Judy Friedman, Marie Graham, Frank Hall, Milton C. Hutcherson, Bernard Peters, Ali Sar, and Joel Scharwz.

Three hundred college journalists, the largest conference of its kind in the nation, are expected to attend.

Sponsored by five journalism organizations and Redlands University, the two day convention will feature workshop study groups, newspaper contests, committee and organization meetings and an awards banquet Saturday night.

Scheduled speakers for banquets to be held Friday and Saturday nights include Virgil Pinkley, publisher of Imperial and Coachella Valley newspapers, national radio commentator, former publisher of the Los Angeles Mirror-News and former vice president, United Press International.

Other speakers will be Virgil Partch, nationally known cartoonist who signs himself VIP, a former Walt Disney artist. Saturday night, Abigail Van Buren, syndicated columnist of "Dear Abby" from San Francisco, will speak.

Win Two Firsts

Winning two first prizes in last year's convention contests for news photography and feature writing, Valley will again enter the contests. Categories are to include news, feature, editorial and sports writing as well as yearbook caption and copy writing. Contests will also be held for photography students in categories of news, feature, sports, and yearbook photography.

Contests Held

Contests will be held for both two-year and four-year college students. Duplicate prizes will be awarded to both divisions of schools.

Held last year at Fresno State College, the convention, attended by both Northern and Southern California journalism educators and students, is sponsored by California Journalism Association of Junior Colleges; California Intercollegiate Press Association; Beta Phi Gamma, junior college honorary journalism fraternity; Alpha Phi Gamma, four-year college journalism fraternity; Redlands University; and the California Newspaper Publishers Association and San Bernardino unit will sponsor the Awards Banquet.

Athenaeum Screens 'Sheep'

"The Sheep Has Five Legs," a French movie production, starring Fernandel, French comedian, will be screened as part of the Athenaeum foreign film series Friday, March 13, in the Men's Gym at 8 p.m.

A United Motion Picture Organization release, "The Sheep Has Five Legs" is a light comedy about an old French winegrower and his quintuplet sons. It provides Fernandel with an opportunity to play six leading roles.

The story details the adventures of the old man and his sons who are rounded up on their 40th birthday to bring public attention to the little village of their birth.

As Papa Saint-Forget and his five sons, Gernandel creates six completely individual characterizations. He portrays his five sons as a beauty expert, window cleaner, sea captain, newspaper man and priest.

Red Cross Campaign To End Tomorrow

Donations will be accepted by faculty members until tomorrow for the Red Cross as part of the American National Red Cross Fund Campaign which ends tomorrow.

The Los Angeles Chapter quota is $2,300,000 out of the national quota of $95 million.

During the 1957-58 period, more than $235,000 was provided for relief operations of the brush and forest fires in the Los Angeles area.

Student Art Work In Library Display

Student art work from the life drawing classes of Miss Harriet Baker and Miss Marie Scott is now showing in the campus library.

Works of Ernestine Pancer, Dick Wentworth and Jeanne Greene are among the drawings and paintings chosen from a large selection presented to the library.

The life drawing classes feature anatomy and painting from muscle charts, skeletons and hired models. Students begin with drawings, but work up to painting and black and white shadings.

Most of the present exhibits are in the drawing stage, said Miss Baker.

Monarch Bulletins

DEAN REMINDS STUDENTS OF RESTRICTIONS

With the coming of warm weather, students are once again reminded of school regulations concerning summer clothes. Slacks, capris or shorts of any type are not allowed for women and sports clothes such as Bermuda shorts are prohibited for men, according to Mrs. Nena S. Royer, dean of student activities.

West Point Cadets To Engage Forensics

West Point cadets will visit Valley College for the first time Tuesday for a scheduled panel discussion with members of the Forensic Club, according to John Buchanan, speech instructor.

Convening at 11 a.m. in the Student Lounge, the forum will exchange views on how Russia and the United States can be brought to a friendlier relationship through education.

A question and answer period will provide opportunity for audience participation.

"Students interested in international affairs will not want to miss this discussion on education as a means of resolving the conflict between Russia and the western world," Buchanan said.

Clinton Kemsley of the Forensic Club will act as moderator.

Three cadets from the class of 1959 will represent the United States Military Academy. They are William E. Barry, Macon, Georgia; Paul E. Dearmin Jr., Ft. Worth, Texas; and Paul N. Sper, Rochester, New York.

Forensic Club members slated to take part are Charles Bernstein, Selma Feldman, Arthur Hinman, Kurt Jung, Charmaine Posten and Judy Walgren.

The cadets will leave West Point by air tomorrow for Los Angeles, according to Dearmin, Los Angeles section, far west trip coordinator.

Scheduled for two appearances Monday, they will speak at 10 a.m. at Loyola University and 1 p.m. at Immaculate Heart Convent and College, Hollywood.

Leprechauns, Lions, Dance For Holiday

By TOM GREENE
Star Staff Writer

Faith and Begorra!

'Tis time once again for the annual appearance of leprechauns and the search for shamrocks on the green.

St. Patrick's Day is near and along with all the Irish, Valley will contribute its share to the festivities. A St. Patrick's Dance will be held Saturday, March 14, in the Men's Gym.

"Judging from the participation and spirit shown at the various school activities, this dance should be one of Valley's best," said Louis Berger, Associated Students vice president.

Dancing will begin at 9 p.m. and last until midnight. Entertaining for the evening will be Robert P. MacDonald, music instructor, and his band with vocalist Sandy Garner.

Dress for the occasion will be sporty with party dresses for the women and sport clothes for the men.

"It would be more than appropriate for everybody to wear just a wee bit of green," Berger commented. "If they should forget about it, no need to worry," he said, "because everyone will be given an Irish green hat to wear."

Admission is by student body card with no additional fee.

Refreshments will be served. They will include cookies, cokes and punch, according to Berger.

Wrangle US Foreign Aid

Valley College's "Pershing Square" will see another hassle today at noon in the Quad when the Quad Wranglers, open air debaters, expound on "this waste called foreign aid," according to John Buchanan, speech instructor.

Cort Smith, Forensic Club speaker, will contend that many underprivileged countries in the world would be better off with butter instead of bullets from America's overloaded warehouses.

Moderator Bill Edler, also from the Forensic Club, will then turn the microphone over to anyone in the audience wishing to be heard. There will be no formal debate.

Buchanan says today's subject might be of especial interest to some of the numerous foreign students on campus.

"It is hoped they will feel free to participate," he said. "They might have some interesting viewpoints."

Duo Discusses School Topics

Discussing his platform and ideas on current educational problems on campus Tuesday will be Dr. Robert F. Craig, candidate for the Los Angeles School Board of Education. Dr. Craig will be accompanied by Mrs. Mary Tingloff, now a member of the Board, who will also speak.

They will appear in the Men's Gym Tuesday at 4 p.m. A Civic Center permit was obtained for the program, according to Dr. Ernest Thacker, history instructor and president of the Faculty Association.

The Star stated last week that candidates Mrs. Georgina Hardy, Tom B. Carvey, and Mrs. Lucy Baca would also appear. This was incorrect.

Some of the topics they will cover will be half-day sessions, overcrowded classrooms, freedom to teach and future school needs.

Dr. Craig, who is being sponsored by the Committee for Better Schools, is a professor of business administration at the University of Southern California. He has practiced law in Los Angeles for 26 years and was past president of USC Faculty Club and the California Republican Assembly.

Mrs. Tingloff, who was elected to the Board two years ago, was also sponsored by the Committee for Better Schools. At the time of her election, she was a member of the Board of Directors of County Museum, according to Dr. Thacker.

Science Club Holds Morals Topic Panel

Sex in literature, philosophy, societies and anatomy will be discussed at a panel titled "Changing Social and Moral Values."

The panel will be presented by the Behavioral Science Club tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Women's Gym.

Frank Pagliaro, psychology instructor, will be moderator for the discussion.

"Of course, I have a few ideas of my own that I will probably interject providing the panel is willing," Pagliaro said.

The discussion will be concerned with the role sex has in our lives. There will be plenty of time for questions or comments the audience might want to add, he said.

Roy Beaumont, English instructor, will present his ideas abou sex as to the effects it has in English and philosophy. Leonidas Paolina, biology instructor, will present the physioligical aspects of sex.

"I have no idea what the other members of the panel are going to talk about," Paolino said, "but it should be very interesting." Paolino said he hopes that the audience takes an active part in the discussion.

Edward Kunzer, sociology instructor, will discuss the various facets of sex as they concern groups of people and present a sociological basis for his discussion.

There will be no charge for admission and all Valley students are welcome to attend.

Grads Make Dean's List

Five Valley College graduates have been placed on the Dean's Honor list at UCLA and three others have been elected to honory fraternities, according to Vern W. Robinson, associate director, UCLA.

Information was received by President Walter T. Coultas this week in connection with a followup program on Valley graduates.

The five students on the Dean's Honor List entered UCLA in 1957. They are Phil Cousar, Lucille Edmond, Art Forrest Jr., and Dick Stanley, of the School of Business Administration, and William Kinder of the College of Applied Arts.

Manuel Fernandez, who entered UCLA in 1951, and Bob Sudds, who enerted in 1957, were elected to Phi Epsilon Kappa, men's honorary professional fraternity for students majoring in physical education.

Morton Laub, who entered UCLA in 1958, was elected to Tau Beta Pi, honorary fraternity for students majoring in engineering.

These students do not comprise the entire list of Valley graduates who have been elected to honorary groups, according to Robinson. Many of the 28 honorary groups at UCLA have not submitted a list of members elected in 1958 or at the beginning of 1959.

Aide Tells of Castro

Pictures Student Revolt

BY LIZ ALLEN
Star Feature Editor

With a Cuban flag on his left and an American flag on his right, Israel Tapanes, aide of Fidel Castro, unfolded the story of the Cuban revolution.

Tapanes, now under indictment by the U.S. government for allegedly manufacturing machine guns in Los Angeles during the Cuban revolution, was sponsored by the Spanish Club. He spoke Friday night in the Men's Gym.

He constantly stressed students and their role in Cuba's political life. When Batista took over Cuba in 1926, the students fought for 11 years against him, but were unorganized, he said.

"Many students were persecuted and killed because of their political beliefs," said Tapanes.

When in 1944, Batista left Cuba, a new president was elected, Rauel San Martin. "For a short period there was freedom of speech and freedom of the press, however, graft returned to the government," continued Tapanes.

In 1948, Batista decided to come out of retirement at Daytona Beach, Florida. He wanted to run for the presidency again. "Nobody wanted Batista to return to power," he said.

But Batista, with the aid of the army, after having organized his own political party, gradually took over the provinces. The students went to the presidential palace, thinking they would be supported and could obtain rifles to fight against Batista.

FIDEL CASTRO
Takes Over Cuban Regime

"They were turned down by the already corrupt government," said Tapanes.

"Batista didn't know he was not ready for the generation that faced him when he took over in 1952," said Tapanes. At this time Fidel Castro was the leader of the university students.

Tapanes said Castro wanted to do something about Batista, but the students lacked the funds to start a revolution at the time. Students went to politicians for funds, but were refused.

"We must do this ourselves. The Cuban people have never had justice, Castro said," he related.

"First we attacked the Oriente Province, but the odds were too heavy, and we had to retreat. Those who surrendered to Batista's forces were tortured and killed," related Tapanes.

He gestured to newspaper and magazine clippings he had displayed in front of him, which showed some of the mass murdering of Batista.

Those who weren't captured went to the mountains with Castro. Finally, continued Tapanes, even they were captured. Castro's followers were sent to prison for 10 years, and Castro was to be imprisoned for 50 years.

Batista, however, relented and released the prisoners, who again under the leadership fo Castro, began to organize. Castro left the country and went to Mexico. He returned Dec. 2, 1956.

The army, navy, and air force, under Batista, bombed Castro and his men when they landed.

"Only 12 men were alive after the bombing," said Tapanes. Castro again retreated to the mountains. Once joined by many of his countrymen, he finally defeated Batista.

"For the first time in our history we would have justice," said Tapanes.

First One-Act Stages Today

Valley College laboratory theater will usher in the first one-act play of the semester today. It is "A Young Lady of Property" by Norton Foote.

The play will be performed in the Little Theater at 11 a.m., noon, 1 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. Admission is free.

Directed by Paul Grant, the play depicts a young girl and her dreams for happiness. It tells of the importance of material gains in her life as a substitute for real happiness.

Appearing in the cast are Bea Blatchford, Penny Branning, Lonnie Burr, Tina Isgro, Judith Metcalfe, Rosemary Scott and Tom Thomas.

Parking Endured

Growing up is an arduous and painful task. Complaints are voiced and hardships are endured. But when maturity is reached, memories of bad incidents are usually minimized and thoughts are turned again toward the future.

Valley College is growing and the growing pains are hard to endure. Daily, students must sit in classrooms and attempt to listen to instructors with the noise of tractors and jack hammers in the background.

But the complaint voiced most while Valley is growing is the condition of the parking lots.

A glance into the future would minimize complaints. Valley would only be wasting money if funds were spent to improve the present parking lots.

It would be useless to spend money repairing the lot across from the Women's Gym. Next semester, buildings and tennis courts will begin to appear in this space as part of phase two construction.

The lot adjacent to Burbank boulevard cannot be blacktopped because the area has not been graded nor has the lighting system been installed.

Next semester, however, space for 670 cars will be provided for in an interior street running from Oxnard street to Burbank boulevard. Space for an additional 300 cars will be open in a blacktopped area west of the football stadium. The corner of Burbank boulevard and Fulton avenue will also be available for automobiles of faculty members, administration and visitors.

"It would be impossible to blacktop the Burbank boulevard parking lot now because there would be no place for the students to park their cars while work would be in progress," said President Walter T. Coultas.

There is a good possibility, however, of this lot being oiled during Easter vacation to reduce the dust, according to Coultas.

"With phase two construction just around the corner," said President Coultas, "the only thing we can do is just keep repairing the parking lots."

Instead of the student body emitting sounds of agony for the expansion which Valley is now undergoing, patience and understanding should be substituted and the growing pains will be minimized.

Ban Nuclear Tests

The testing of nuclear weapons should be stopped by an international agreement between the United States, Great Britain, and Russia.

This agreement would stop the detonating of bombs that release radioactive fallout.

Dr. Linus Pauling, biologist from California Institute of Technology, started a declaration that was signed by 9235 scientists from all over the world.

The scientists declared that the increase of radioactivity is particularly serious because its consequence will be an increasing number of deformed children.

The French biologist and geneticist, Jean Rostand, calls the continuation of nuclear tests "the crime projected into the future."

Dr. Albert Schweitzer says, "It is the particular duty of women to prevent this sin against the future. It is for them to raise their voices against it in such a way that they will be heard."

Dr. Schweitzer commented on the use of "clean" fission and fusion bombs.

"The clean hydrogen bomb is intended for window display only, not for use. The bomb is to encourage people to believe that future nuclear tests will be followed by less and less radiation and that there is no argument against the continuation of the tests."

The arbitrary limit on an individual's exposure to radiation has been lowered through the years from 100 radiation units per year in 1934 to five at the present time.

If testing is continued at the present rate the radiation will be four times its present rate in 1983 and six times in 2010.

The most powerful radioactive region is between the Northern latitudes 10 degrees and 60 degrees because of the testing of the United States and Russia.

With all of this evidence supporting the termination of nuclear testing and the transmission of them into the future we owe it to humanity to cease the testing.

Educators Disclose Plans, Dreams; Need Revitalized Courses, Studies

By LYNDA ELYEA
Star Social Editor

What are the future hopes and dreams of some of the country's leading educators in revising the educational programs of universities and colleges?

This question actually faced educators and guest panelists in seminar meetings held from August to December. The fields discussed included liberal arts, engineering, teacher education and business administration.

Authorities on the panels were as prominent as Milton Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University; Henry Steele Commager, historian of Amherst and Columbia University; and Henry T. Heald of the Ford Foundation. They were asked to present ideas on how to improve our country's graduates.

Members of the seminars were also given the freedom of spending as much money as they needed to start their "new university."

Plans for the new university will probably become a reality. A 1400-acre estate and $2 million for the establishment of a branch college were given to the University of Michigan State by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wilson about a year ago.

Opinions expressed by the experts indicated almost a revolution in higher education. They believe that brighter students are being bridled and are not able to attain their highest levels intellectually under the present system.

They feel that vocational training in colleges has gotten out of hand and is wasting many students' time. Quite often the special training received is outdated by the time the student graduates.

Industry usually has a graduate training of its own for new employees now.

One remedy in the teaching field would be to work out a constructive program with community secondary schools so that student teachers could do more actual classroom work and spend less time pouring over courses in education theory.

Valley and other junior colleges serve two functions now, according to Dr. Stewart Marsh, dean of instruction. These are fitting graduates for continuance in four-year colleges and universities and preparing students for work after a two-year training program.

"As far as I can see, the junior college cannot change its purposes without endangering the fulfillment of the student's needs," he said.

When Valley goes into its new buildings next semester, a new engineering program will be initiated, he said. One course, a technological engineering course, will give students a broad field of education in engineering.

The specialized training may be given in the company with which the graduate wants to be employed.

The other course fulfills the transfer requirements. With the new added facilities, more actual experience will be given engineering students, according to Dr. Marsh.

In all fields, more emphasis is put on the employer who takes over the student after graduation. This increases the load of the employer, but it also gives him opportunity to train his new employees as he wants them.

In business administration, less time would be spent on technical accounting or similar courses, and more time would be devoted to develop personality and leadership qualities. These phases of education are often neglected as regular course material, according to the educators.

Also, the educators suggested broadening the fields of study, and on the other hand, concentrating upon deeper study of specialized fields.

Instead of running the usual cycle of Mondey-Wednesday-Friday classes, broader courses would be substituted with more outside work, possibly in the library and laboratory.

In this way, with the proper incentive, students could set their own pace in learning and also tailor the requirements to suit their own vocational needs.

An example given was that of a political science major. While he should take courses in Latin and the classical world, he could study laws and customs of the time in place of the broad general courses.

No transcripts were made of the Michigan State University seminars. Ideas, not words, were desired.

The university's officials wanted the educators to speak freely and are now assessing the results of their experiment.

NEW LIBRARY—Framework of Valley's new library is progressing each day into the actual building. Hopes of some well known educators are that one day the student will spend more time in the library and laboratory doing research on their own, instead of spending most of their time in the classroom.

Editor:

After having been one of the Star's severest critics for years, I wish to pay tribute to the fine issue of Feb. 26. It was grammatical and literate. I am happy to discover that a junior college paper need not be filled with stylistic and mechanical errors.

Congratulations.

Resents Implication

Editor:

We, the officers and members of the Do Nothing Club, resent the implication that we are a "good-for-nothing" club.

The aim of this club is to bring more social life to the members of the student body. To this end the officers have planned an active social calendar. This includes many and diverse activities such as rallies, dances, parties, picnics, beach parties and others.

Membership is open to all members of the student body who are interested in social activities.

Records Need Revamping

By unanimous approval of the Executive Council a recommendation has been submitted to the administration for a cumulative record card which would become a permanent entry in a student's official school record. Information to be added to the official record would include student body offices, athletic participation, leadership and outstanding awards as well as accomplishments by students deemed outstanding by department heads.

It was submitted in the belief that many benefits could be derived by a student if this information became part of his school record and the council urged approval from the administration.

No final decision has been made yet, but Robert J. Nassi, dean of admissions and guidance, states that a student's official transcript should show only two facts, grades and information pertinent to a student's eligibility for graduation.

As for information about activities to which students devote much extra time, future schools and employers will learn of these through application forms.

"As the situation stands now," Nassi explained, "we have a folder containing additional information including extra curricular activities inserted in each student's record.

"All of the information we have can be used to answer letters requesting recommendation or information about students. But, at the present time, we don't have complete information in the folders about the extra curricular activities of students."

One reason the Office of Admissions does not have this information is because there is no organized way of submitting these facts.

Regardless of the outcome of the Executive Council's recommendation, there should be steps taken to insure that at least Valley College will have on record certain activities in which students have participated.

Certainly, if a student receives a college leadership award or a departmental award, this information should be recorded. Also, if a student devotes many extra hours to various school or club activities, this information should be entered in the student's folder.

"Many employers are interested in whether a person is a clockwatcher, or whether he is an individual who devotes time outside the classroom to school activities," said Nassi.

"If we have information about a student which shows this, we have a good indication as to what the student is like," he said.

Perhaps department heads or clubs could submit to the Office of Admissions a special form designed for the exclusive purpose of containing information for inclusion in a student's record.

"We are not afraid of the extra work," Nassi said. "We want to help the student as much as possible and we can if we have all the necessary information."

Cowpoke a Man

"Draw yer shootin' iron, pardner. There's gonna be a showdown."

It looks like the so-called adult western movie and television program are here to stay. Gone forever are the days of the celluloid cowpoke who never poked a cow, or anything else and who, mounted on white steed and sporting a white ten-gallon hat, rescued the western version of Pearl Pureheart from the clutches of the villain.

"'Have Gun—Will Travel' is the mark of the man," so the refrain goes. But the real mark of the new cowboy is no longer how fast he can draw and kill a man or rout the land or oil grabbing villain out of town. Today's cowboy is a man because he is portrayed as being one. He has all the problems of any man living today.

One of the latest gimmicks of the western producer or director is a new concept called romance. It seems that out west the sexes have finally discovered each other.

The guitar, once the limit of a cowhand's amour, is no longer the ultimate romance. The booming population growth of the West during its period of construction is proof of this.

If all the cowboys had ridden off into the sunset with their side-kicks, who would've been left to keep the home fires burning?

Along with this revolutionary concept goes the idea that perhaps all the women of the early West weren't school "marms" or sheriffs' daughters. A new variety of woman has sprung up to keep pace with the new style western man.

Other fixtures which have been removed include the imbecilic sidekicks of our heroes. No longer stumbling over his own feet, mounting his pony backwards and drunkenly brawling in the local saloon, today's second-in-command hero is just as admirable as his boss.

Usually a deputy, brother, or old friend of the cowboy hero, whole adventures are often given today to a tale of the side-kick rather than the

Today's audience has matured; the westerns have kept pace. Seems as if the cowboy was a real human being after all.

Living in swank San Francisco hotels, wearing clothes suitable for life in the open, a typical example is "the man called Paladin." Ten minutes of one "Have Gun—Will Travel" program were once devoted to his explaining how to prepare a gourmet repast in the wilds just below the western Canadian border.

Some of the most entertaining and tear-jerking programs seen on TV were screened on "Wagontrain." This serial tends to produce the sentimental western, enjoyed by many. But Ward Bond manages to lead his band of wagons through a gamut of sufficient adventures to hold the interest of the stoutest heart.

Television and movie makers haven't as yet gotten away from the use of gimmicks to gain and hold their audiences. But at least those used today are a little more sensible.

'Theory of Numbers' To Be Seminar Topic

Mathematics seminars enter their third week today with George Jaffray, mathematics instructor, discussing proofs in relation to theorems in Room 15 at 3 p.m.

"The Theory of Numbers" is the current topic being discussed by Jaffray, said Charles B. Kinzek, faculty sponsor of the seminar. The meetings, which take place every Thursday, are designed to stimulate the mathematical knowledge of qualified students, explained Kinzek.

Diophantine equations and Euclidean algorithms covered the blackboard last week. The diophantine equations deal with problems that have more unknowns that equations. Euclid's algorithms is a method of finding the greatest common divisor of two numbers which can be expressed as a linear combination of the two numbers.

The following question is an example if a diophantine equation:

"Long ago, a man bought some calves at $10, some lambs at $3 and some chickens at 50 cents. He paid $100 for 100 animals. How many of each kind did he purchase?"

By using the Euclidean method, the answers are 5 calves, 1 lamb and 94 chickens. This method is used to solve most problems containing more unknowns than equations," Kinzek said.

According to Kinzek, students may still join the seminar by possessing these qualifications: an overall B average; a recommendation from a mathematics instructor at Valley; and a knowledge of college algebra.

A formal letter of recognition will be entered in the student's cumulative record provided he obtains an essential understanding of the seminar's program, said Kinzek.

Choir Launches Spring Program

The Valley College Choir will begin its Spring Concert series with a performance at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium March 13 at the convention of the National Association of Junior Colleges.

The concert will be sponsored by the Southern California Junior College Association, which recently named Valley's choir director and music department chairman, Richard A. Knox, president of 1959 and 1960.

The choir will participate with other junior college choirs from Southern California in a mas performance at the main session of the convention.

A concert by the choir will be given March 18 for the North Hollywood Optimist Club at Hody's Restaurant in North Hollywood.

Valleyites Win Four Awards

Yvonne Else, Joanne Felton, Donna Hart, and Barbara Merry have received the 140-word-per-minute award for shorthand and transcription from Gregg Publishing Company.

There have been only four other awards given to Valley College students. They are all executive secretories now in large companies or banks, according to Delilah Outram, Valley secretarial science instructor.

The test is a five minute dictation test of Congressional Record material and must be transcribed in a limited period of time with 95 per cent or better, said Mrs. Outram.

Valley Alumnus To Exhibit Work

Participating in a three-man art exhibit is a former Valley College art student, Martin Gelber.

Gelber, whose work is on display at the Library of Architecture and Allied Arts, 3723 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, transferred to the School of Architecture at the University of Southern California after attending Valley for a year.

Judy Von Eyeuv of UCLA and Bob Anderson of Chouinard's Art Institute are also exhibiting their work.

Whittinghill Visits Dance

The sucess of the Inter Organizational Council-sponsored dance Monday encourages the possibility of having future IOC activities during the 11 a.m. hour, according to Louis Berger, IOC chairman.

Dick Whittinghill, radio personality, was featured at the first Inter Organizational Council-sponsored dance of the semester in the Men's Gym.

More than 300 people were on hand to welcome Whittinghill, according to Berger.

Whittinghill was presented with a certificate by Berger and signed by President Walter T. Coultas for "excellence in record spinning."

"Valley College is a wonderful place and anytime I can come back it will be my pleasure," Whittinghill commented to Berger during the festivities.

Highlighting the dance and free refreshments was a dance contest. First place was won by Marie Broadous and Johnny Simpson with Carol Matson and Jack Jackson copping the runnerup spot.

Record albums were presented to the winners by Whittinghill. Judges of the contests were Mrs. Nena Royer, dean of student activities; Bob McLain and Judie Yeager, dance coordinators; and Whittinghill.

Paul Aronson, also a dance coordinator, acted as master of ceremonies for the affair. He commented that if response is as great at the next IOC-sponsored dance there will be many more noon dances.

Library Orders New Microfilm

Microfilm totaling $1000 is on order for the Library, bringing the future total to nearly 300 rolls, according to Mrs. June Biermann, head librarian.

The rolls, recording past issues of magazines discarded by the Library for lack of space, are due to arrive some time during the summer, Mrs. Biermann said.

The new library will have a special microfilm room with two special viewers to help in reading the rolls.

The Library now has only 42 rolls.

Writers' Talent Hunt To End Monday

A talent contest for new writers is being conducted by the Writers' Club, according to Mrs. Mildred Slott, publicity chairman. Students who have not had material published professionally or in "Manuscript," the club's annual publication, are eligible to enter.

Prose or poetry may be submitted, and copy should be under 1500 or 32 lines, respectively.

An envelope with the writer's name, address and phone number should accompany the entries.

Deadline for contest material is Monday, Mrs. Slott said. Copy should be given to Sylvain Bernstein, club sponsor, in Room 6.

'Origin of the Egg' Topic For Zoology Participants

Valley's first bi-weekly zoology seminar of the semester will meet today at 3 p.m. in Room 70, under the co-sponsorship of James Vial and George Hale, biological science instructors.

Today's meeting will include the selection of panels of two or three students to be assigned research in several areas of study. They will present their findings for group discussion and analysis at future meetings.

"Chordate Origin," "Animal Geography" and "Origin of the Egg" are sample problems to be reviewed and discussed by the group. Hale or Vial will act as moderator and direct the group's observations.

The work of the group will be primarily directed toward biological science majors or students enrolled in Zoology 1 or 2. Most of the material to be covered will be in areas of study with which the students are expected to be familiar.

Attaching a formal letter of recommendation to a student's diploma indicating that he has taken part in the series of seminars is a goal which Vial and Hale, along with other campus seminar sponsors, are attempting to initiate at Valley.

TA Department 'Learns by Doing'

By MARLENE MUCHNICK, Star Staff Writer

"The way to learn is by doing," believes Bob E. Davis, head of Valley's theater arts department. "That applies to the acting profession as well as any other," he added.

An instructor at Valley since it began in 1949, Davis has consistently proven the value of this theory. His students, many of them professionals in the theater and TV, are kept busy collecting experience in every phase of theater work, from prop men to lead performers.

Davis instructs the advanced drama students, known as the Crown Players. Concentrating on major productions, the group produces between four and six plays a year, using the Little Theater and the TA office, Room 43, for rehearsals, set designing and construction, and make-up rooms.

"We cannot even compare with other junior colleges as far as facilities," Davis observed. "We're terribly crowded for space. We anticipate the new theater arts building which will be completed September 1960."

Larger Facilities

The building, part of Valley's plan for a modernized campus, will have three large theaters and individual recording rooms, among other improvements.

Despite present inadequacies, the Crown Player productions have been acclaimed by local reviewers as outstanding in talent and presentation.

Though the Little Theater has an audience seating capacity of only 60, "those seats are always sold out at every performance," Davis said.

TA Majors Prevalent

Davis estimates that most of his students are TA majors. More than a few graduates have returned for additional experience.

Some who have become professional since enrolling as TA majors are Jill St. John, Martin Milner, Val Benedict, Bob Sampson and Dave Smirnoff, who now heads his own production company, Jan-Lee Studios.

Crown presentations are for the most part adaptations of Broadway successes.

Past shows have included such tense dramas as "Time Limit," "Hatful of Rain," "Rainmaker," "Career," "Picnic" and "Oedipus Rex."

Davis Acts

Each production runs for 10 or 12 evening performances. Davis has acted in these productions on occasion.

Students take turns directing, managing and starring in the plays, which tend toward realism and intense absorption in characterization.

"The actor must think of being his character. He or she must move in accordance with that personality. One must act technically as well as mentally," Davis emphasized.

Students taking a TA class as an elective will improve their poise, lose or alter any feelings of self-consciousness, learn effective language, and to "think on their feet," he added.

Burglars Enter

Quick thinking was required last semester when, during the run of "The Tender Trap," the prop room was ransacked by burglars, and students found a sofa and chairs gone, as well as bottles and other small props.

A rental agency was called to replace the furniture and students made or located other necessary props. The show went on that night as scheduled.

"Career" was the most difficult of all Crown Player attempts, Davis remembers. It contained 16 scenes, the plot covering a 25-year time span.

Actors 'Age'

The problems encountered in "aging" the players "were enormous," Davis said.

Morris Fruitman, the "unofficial" head make-up artist at Valley, believes that a novice putting make-up on an actor can take an hour and accomplish nothing. "An experienced person can do the job in five minutes," Fruitman said.

Some tricks used in aging the face are the use of face putty, red, white and black pencil to deepen wrinkles and natural lines around the nose, mouth and eyes, and using a cement substance to create a "scar" effect.

"When I have to 'age' a face, I first picture one of the subject, then one of a naked skull. I can then age the person to any degree between the two extremes."

Fruitman, 24-year-old speech-drama major, has had only one semester in make-up experience, but did well from the beginning of the class.

"It's a challenge. It's painting a picture on a face," he said.

MAKEUP REVEALS TALENT—At least it does in the theater arts department as (l. to r.) Terri Turner, with the aid of Mel Metcalf and Cherie Blackburn help Marty Katz develop a new personality via makeup. Students in the department are kept busy collecting experience in every phase of theater work.

Monarch Tankers To Journey To LACC

Monarch swimmers will depart for LACC tomorrow to engage the Cubs in what will be the first home meet for the LACC squad.

LACC Coach Gail Wyatt said "We have one of our best squads but it is going to be the toughest and most equally balanced year in jaycee swimming history."

"The kids from the CIF high schools have come in and are making it real tough," Wyatt said.

Jerry Lipman swam to two firsts as Valley College defeated Pierce College 56-29 and lost to Los Angeles State College, 58-28, yesterday at Rosemead.

Lipman took a first in the 200-yard butterfly, the event in which he is currently the National JC record holder. His time in yesterday's meet was 2:31.6 opposed to his record time of 2:11.9.

"I had Lipman slow down in case we needed him for 440 yard freestyle and then he wouldn't be tired," said Coach Mike Wiley.

Lipman also took a first in the 220 yard freestyle event with a time of 2:24.6.

New Names in Score Books

Led by the high scoring of Billy Wold, this year's basketball team accounted for three new names in the 11 high scorers in Valley College history. Wold, who entered the ranks of the top 10 last year moved to the top of the heap with a two-year total of 1305 points.

Jim Malkin coupled his 350 points last year with 426 points this year to accumulate 776 points and place him third among the scorers.

Bruce Powers, one of the steadiest performers on the court, but who has never been high point man in a Valley game, moved into the ninth position as his two-year combination came to 462 points.

John Berberich in his one-year career scored 437 points to place him 11th in the scoring.

In the individual scoring performances Wold was first with a 40-point game from last year and this year he and Malkin both had 39-point games to tie for second in individual scoring.

Berberich moved into the seventh place among the individual scorers with a 30-point game against Santa Monica.

The team averaged 73.4 points a game and allowed their opponents an average of 66.8 tallies per game.

In the field of larceny the quintet was not up to that of its foes. The opposition stole the ball an average of 14.5 times a game compared with a 13.8 average for the home crew.

Berberich, who has played for only one year has been offered a full athletic scholarship to UCLA starting next semester.

Wold has been talking to the hoop mentor from the University of Iowa and is waiting for the word from them. His transcripts have been sent.

Powers and Malkin are as yet undecided as to where they are going to take their talents.

If Ivan Bennett transfers to UCLA as he plans, Coach Ralph Caldwell will be facing next season without a returning first stringer.

Netmen To Start Metro Campaign

Jery "Shah" Shahbaghlian and Jim Chandlee will lead the Valley netters in their first conference match against Long Beach tomorrow. Valley nipped Pierce 4-3 Friday for the second time this year in an abbreviated match with the last two doubles matches called because of darkness.

Wednesday the Lions travel to East LA in their second Metro start.

Bud Petty upset Shahbaghlian but Steve Frieze came through in subbing for injured Ron Schroedek, copping a long three-set match. The match was much tighter than the earlier 8-1 win posted by Valley as four of the seven matches went into three sets.

Long Beach has tied Glendale, the team who beat Valley 6-3, and poses a tough Metro opener. Coach Mark Mathews has already equalled the number of wins of last year's squad by posting a 2-2 pre-Metro record.

Monarchs, Brahmas Meet on Pike Field

Monarch diamondmen, returning home after an error-filled weekend in Visalia, host Pierce College today on Pike Field.

The Lions then travel to the University of Southern California to play the SC Junior Varsity on Bovard Field, Monday.

Lion horsehiders, with a 5-3 practice record, open the Metropolitan Conference baseball season Friday, March 13 at Long Beach.

Seventeen errors plagued the Monarchs, who won one of three games, in the College of Sequoias tournament last weekend. Fresno won the tournament defeating the College of Sequoias 6-1.

Valley committed 10 errors in the first game against COS while losing 6-2, Friday.

Dick Rowe smashed a 350-foot bases-loaded homerun to right center field as the Monarchs erupted for eight runs on four hits in the sixth inning against Citrus last Saturday.

Lose Lead

In Sunday's game Valley held an early 4-1 lead but Bakersfield rallied for three runs to tie the game in the seventh and went on to win it in the 10th scoring on a double and two singles.

Loft, Sidles and workhorse Bondy, who has appeared in every Valley game, divided the pitching chores as Valley defeated Glendale last Monday in a high scoring duel 11-10.

Mike Baker had a perfect day at the plate getting a double and three singles in four at-bats.

Leading Monarch batters after eight games are Davies, 400; Tom Celli, .360; Miller, .313 and Rowe, 292.

Players, who were selected from tennis classes include Ann Gallespie, singles; Isable Maitles, singles; Barbara Bilasnansky, doubles; and Donna Bennett, doubles.

Lion Golfers Defeat LACC

After posting their first win of the season, Coach Ernest Y. Johnson's golfers travel to Sepulveda to meet Glendale City College in a practice game tomorrow. The Lions meet East Los Angeles at Lakewood Monday, March 9.
